

Yoga for You

by Ray Madigan and Shelley Choy

Parivrtta Trikonasana - Stage 2

(Revolved Triangle Pose)

This is a standing pose in which the spine is extended and twisted. Regular practice of Parivrtta Trikonasana will help the legs become strong and elastic, and relieves backaches. One develops determination and balance. Mastering this pose brings a tranquil mind-set and infuses one's being with confidence. In Stage 1 (see last week's column), we learn to keep the legs straight and hips even as we take the hand to a block. In this second stage, the balance is further challenged and the twist intensified. Readers are encouraged to master Stage 1 before proceeding to Stage 2.

- 1) Stand on an even surface with your feet together.
- 2) Inhale and jump the legs about 4 feet apart.
- 3) Turn the right leg out 90 degrees and the left foot in about 45 degrees. Place a block to the outside of the right ankle. Press the feet into the floor and straighten the legs fully, keeping the muscles of the legs tight and gripping.
- 4) Stretch the arms apart at shoulder level to open the chest. Now with an exhalation turn the waist and chest, and place the left hand on the block. Place the right hand on the hip. To help with balance, look down at the right foot. Press the inner edge of the right foot down and do not let the right hip swing out to the right. Keep the hips even and compact. The head should be in line with the right foot. Do not let the legs bend.
- 5) Breathe evenly through the nose, working to keep the pose steady and poised by holding the legs firm.
- 6) Now with an exhalation, turn the waist to the right and roll the right shoulder back to open the chest. Turn the head and gaze softly over the right shoulder.
- 7) Stay in the pose for up to 30 seconds, observing that the legs stay firm, straight and gripped and that the hips do not swing to the right or left. Stretch and extend the trunk and rotate with your exhalations. Press the left hand down to help with chest rotation.
- 8) Then inhale and come up. Repeat to the other side.

Next week we will show the final stage of this wonderful pose.

Caption for photo:

Ray Madigan and Shelley Choy are Certified Iyengar Yoga teachers and co-direct the Manoa Yoga Center. See <httpwww.manoayoga.com/> or call 382-3910 for more information.

Manoa Yoga Center and the authors take no responsibility for any injury arising from the practice of these yoga postures. Readers should seek a doctor's approval before commencing this yoga practice.